

Lots of love for Sting's 60th

JAKE Gyllenhaal was flirting with Melanie Griffith and Don Johnson's daughter, Dakota Johnson, at Sting's 60th birthday bash, and spies said the up-and-coming actress looked charmed by the "Source Code" star.

"She was trying to play it cool, but looked very smitten," said a witness, adding that Griffith kept a watchful eye over her at Sting's Beacon Theatre concert.

Gyllenhaal has been seen hanging with a string of Hollywood starlets after splitting with Taylor Swift in January. And Dakota has no fewer than six new films dropping, including "21 Jump Street" with Jonah Hill and "The Five-Year Engagement."

Love seemed to be in the air at Sting's Beacon bash and after-party at the Lambs Club on Saturday.

Robert F. Kennedy Jr. was seen getting cozy with Cheryl Hines at the concert. Bruce Springsteen, who played at the event, cracked, "Sting could have sex for 29 hours straight, although I thought after four hours you should call a doctor." He also joked, "Stay hard, my friend."

Sting cuddled up to wife Trudie Styler, who nearly moved him to tears by flying in a band of more than 30 Afghanistan vets from Scotland's Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders and the Royal Scots Dragoon Guards as a surprise.

A source tells us Styler put the vets up in a New York hotel for 48 hours and, "Whenever Sting asked where she was going, Trudie kept saying she was 'going to the gym.' But then she would go meet with the band. She just used the gym excuse to do rehearsals."

On Sunday, following the show which raised $3.7 million for the Robin Hood Foundation, Styler threw Sting a brunch at the couple's 15 Central Park West duplex.

Guests including Springsteen and Sting's family from Newcastle came for cake and champagne at the Shelton, Mindel & Associates-designed apartment, with terraces overlooking Central Park and a dramatic winding staircase.
